DEMANDS OF THE IRON SHIPBUILDERS

At a meeting held in Washington March 10th, 1870, to consider the resulting effect of a bill reported by Hon Mr Lynch, to the House of Redresentatives, the following establishments engaged in the building of Iron Ships were represented Atlantic Works, Boston, Continental Works, New York, Morgan Iron Works, New York, William Cramp & Sons, Philadelphia; Pennsylvania Iron Works, Chester Pa, Pusey, Jones & Co. Wilmington, Delaware, Harlan, Hollingsworth & Co, Wilmington Delaware After prolonged consideration of the bill the following resolutions were unanimously offered.

Resolved, Whereas the bill reported by the 'Select Committee on the causes of the reduction of American tonnage," provides that there shall be a drawback of all the duties on the material required for the construction of Wooden Ships, and provides for only a partial drawback on the material required for iron ships (as per statement annexed), so that if said bill should become a law, the disparity existing at the present time between the cost of a wooden and an iron ship, will be greatly increased —and whereas the supremacy in commercial marine, has passed to Great Britain because of her superior advantages in the use of iron, and cannot be recovered until like advantages are secured for the building of iron ships in the United States therefore—it is the unanimous judgment of this meeting that legislation which shall provide less relief than the remission of all duties on material required for iron ships, will, by tending to discourage and prevent the building of iron ships fail of its purpose to restore the prestige of American Commerce

The following statement illustrates the assertions of the above Resolutions

Estimated cost of an iron ship of one thousand (1000) tons with outfit,	$125,000 00
Estimated cost of a wooden ship of 1000 tons, with outfit	$75,000 00
Disparity now against iron ships, or 67 per cent greater than wood	$50 000 00
The bill proposes on the wooden ships costing	$75 000 00
A drawback of $8 00 per ton—say $8 000 and a subsidy of $1 50 say 10 per cent on $15 00 $15 000 00	$[illegible] 000 00
Net cost of wooden ship to owner,	$52 000 00
On the iron ships costing	$125 000 00
The bill offers a drawback of $12 00 $12 000 00, and a subsidy of $2 00 per ton —say $[illegible] 0 000 00	$32 000 00
Net cost of iron ships,	$93 000 00
Deduct net cost of wooden ship	$52,000 00
Disparity against iron, Or 10 per cent greater than wood	$41 000 00

We have stated the grounds of opposition to the Lynch bill on the part of the builders of wooden vessels We beg leave now to call attention to the ground upon which the iron building base their opposition It will be readily seen that if every class is considered to the extent of its demand the whole measure must be defeated

THE TARIFF BILL

Mr Allison said he regretted that he was compelled to differ from a majority of the Committee of Ways and Means upon every point in the bill except those that were calculated to relieve the people of the burdens now imposed upon them He did not believe the country was yet in a condition for free trade, but at the same time he thought there might be a diminution of the duties on imports imposed by the pending bill

CHARLES SUMNER OPPOSED TO THE ST DOMINGO PURCHASE

The Senate was in executive session all day and, with the exception of the consideration of two executive nominations, the whole time was occupied by Mr Sumner in an exhaustive speech in opposition to the ratification of the San Domingo treaty Mr Sumner spoke for four hours, and the speech is pronounced one of the most able, eloquent and elaborate of his life He spoke from notes, and made frequent references to books upon the subject A mass of official correspondence in relation to the treaty was laid before the Senate during the session Senator Morton will follow to-morrow, in reply to Mr. Sumner and in support of the treaty The opponents of the treaty to-night claim that they can count 29 votes certain against it, and this number is ample to defeat it and several votes to spare

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL

The Natchez (Miss) New South bears at the head of its editorial columns the name of James L Alcorn, of Mississippi, for Vice President in 1872

The Louisville Courier-Journal says that Whittier is admired in the South quite as warmly as he would be if he had never written a single 'song of freedom'

The New York World congratulates 'the Democrats of New York city and of the Union that the Ring of Sweeny, Tweed and company, is a power in the Democratic party, are utterly destroyed "

A Nashville dispatch says that numerous contracts for building in that city have been suspended on account of the proposed Congressional interference with the Government of the State—which may be so, or may be a political story

A friend of Mr Burlingame says he had great expectations of the future of the Pacific States where he intended to settle after accomplishing his treaty duties, and that he thought they would soon furnish a candidate for the Presidency

A curious call has been issued for a State Temperance Convention in Grafton, West Virginia, on Thursday, June 23 The signers who say they are about equally divided between Republicans and Democrats, add "If it is thought best, when we meet in convention, we will adopt universal sufferage, which includes female enfranchisement But, be it known, we will not vote for any drunkard under any circumstances "

The Wool-growers' Association, which recently ventured to question the accuracy of Mr Well's report on the effects of the wool tariff, is not likely to gain much credit by its action A memorial to the Senate Finance and the House Ways and Means Committees from 45 of the best woolen manufacturers in the country, and representing a capital of over fifteen millions of dollars, indorses the Commissioner's statements in the most unqualified manner They say that the Association does not represent the opinion of the great body of manufacturers It denied that the wool industry is depressed—the memorialists say it never was so depressed as now Besides it is the manufacturers of fine cloth who complain as well as the wool growers. The carpet makers get their wool subject to a merely revenue duty, which should exclude them in making an estimate of prosperity of the wool interest. The foreign woolen manufacturers are well enough pleased by high taxes here, for such are directly in their favor. On two points the Association has had the grace to be silent. Mr Wells having pointed out the reduced price for wool obtained by farmers, and the great decrease in the number of sheep, it has nothing to reply —[N Y. Times

THE PISCATAQUIS RAILROAD.

Long before the first blow had been struck for inland railroads whereby Bangor was to receive the trade that surrounded her, our most enterprising people saw and urged the necessity for early action towards a line into the County of Piscataquis Indeed, the wisdom of that demand began disagreeably to be realized, and the trade that naturally belonged to Bangor was being diverted to other markets, before we could be aroused to the absolute necessity, cost what it might, of running lines of communication into the interior counties. Aroostook and Piscataquis, by every consideration tending towards Bangor for outlet, found it necessary to avoid us in consulting their own interests Bangor was losing ground, until finally our people were fully awake to the fact that they could not stand still—they must advance or retreat When the time came they paid liberally and worked diligently for the object in view. The result is seen in the two railroads which within little more than a year have penetrated far enough to show us by the trade that is returning to our merchants that such enterprise only was necessary to make Bangor the commercial as she is the geographical centre of more than one-third of Maine

So far, therefore, as the recovery of our trade is accomplished, we are in a fair way to success. But the peculiar circumstances in which the Piscataquis Railroad was constructed, render it necessary for Bangor to respond still farther pecuniarily or lose all, or nearly all, we have invested. Our citizens are therefore to vote on the proposition to issue the city bonds for $125,000 for the completion and equipment of that road To this proposition there comes up a small opposition to which we gave vent on Thursday, in a communication signed "W" We say small" opposition, because we believe it so, in force as well as in argument. We believe the writer of that only represents the moiety even of those who usually oppose enterprises calculated to enhance the value of this city, a large part of that class plainly seeing that it would be suicidal for Bangor to relinquish now its hold upon the road with not only the certainty of losing all we have invested, but also the possibility of losing a good part of the trade that is now turning toward us We believe the writer with all his ingenuity has failed to show the smallest reason for concluding that Bangor should not at this time respond to this call. The flippancy with which he makes statements, shifting the responsibility for action that is not proved and is merely imaginary by his insinuations against men toward whom even a suspicion never held, well establishes the weakness of his cause

The facts in the case are briefly, that the Railroad needs and must have this money in order to complete the enterprise in a first class manner The following expenditures have been made by the Company, which were not included in the estimated cost of the Road, and which amount to about the sum now asked of the city to complete and equip the Road—

Purchase of equipments,	$88,000
Purchase of shore lots in Bangor	8 815
Interest on city bonds paid and including the coupons due April 1st, for which the Company have the funds provided,	27,353
Total,	125,068

Now, as to the prospect of the road. Having concluded that the only safe course for the city is to improve what it has already accomplished by voting this aid, let us now show why there is still another sufficient reason for nursing it. The cry against it because it will not pay expenses is hasty and inconsiderate. It has done better in the few months of its running than its most sanguine friends could have hoped It has done better, we believe, than any other new road, with one exception, in this State It should be remembered that the railroads that pay running expenses during the first year or two, are exceedingly rare This one bids fair to do that the first year, and that being the case, thereafter its profit is sure

But suppose it should not pay for the first two years—we can show that the country through which it runs is being now rapidly developed, and is capable of giving it, before many years, as good a business as any short road in this State enjoys The fact that speculators have striven by every means in their power to procure the road for their own benefit, is pretty good evidence of this And in this connection, we may as well dispose of the continued complaint, that the route had not been selected elsewhere, by the other proposed line we should undoubtedly have gained more immediate profit—by this route we shall in future gain advantages in the way of developing water power, that were not elsewhere offered. On the whole line of the road there is excellent water power, and our people are already investing, with the idea of establishing manufactories In one year from this time new mills will be sending over this road additional freight, amounting yearly to hundreds of thousands of tons Since the road was opened a new impetus has been given to the slate business, and several new quarries have been opened. Until this year only two quarries were worked in Brownville Two more have just been opened in that town, one in Barnard, and one in Howard, where the most excellent slate is procured — In several other towns they are prospecting, with the promise of success, in the same line The woolen mills of Dover, Foxcroft Guilford, Sangerville and Sebec will add to their present production, and other establishments will no doubt shortly follow. All these will, in a year from this time, be pouring their additional wares over the road into our market, and we shall reap the benefit equally with the country more immediately concerned.— We candidly believe there is not a road of its length in this State whose prospect is better than this.

The question of running it as an independent road can scarcely be called a question at this time. It must be run as such till some corporation is willing and able to lease it.— We have the opinion of one of the leading railroad men in the State, that the road would amply pay any other road for leasing But there is no other road at present in condition to take it. The European & North American Railway is struggling for means to finish its own line, which can only be done by aid of the claims still unallowed by Congress. That road is therefore in no condition to shoulder any more responsibility.

There is but one course for Bangor Having built and encouraged this road so far, it would be worse than insanity to throw it overboard just at the point where it shows signs of developing trade whereby we can get returns. Suppose the worst,—that the city never can receive its money from the road— we believe then the money is well expended, and that before many years the city will receive compound interest on its investment through the trade which our people will gain. We must, therefore, aid the road so far as to place it upon a permanent basis. The road is our road; by its success we enlarge our trade and improve our [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible]

A WORD FOR CUBA

On Monday, the fourth of April, the people of the United States in various localities, will hold mass meetings to express their sympathy for the struggling Cubans The Union League Club of New York, and various other political organizations of differing political persuasions have joined forces with the popular voice and the demonstrations in many places will be grand and potential We hope that Maine will not be backward in this generous and eminently proper encouragement for those whose cause and whose courage have alike appealed to our people for hearty recognition

The history of the Cuban war for freedom is but one shocking rehearsal of Spanish butcheries Somewhat more than a year ago the Cuban people tired of the unendurable oppression and the unjust taxation with which Spain governed them arose in arms for the purpose of procuring independence — They had learned the story of America's greatness and American freedom too thoroughly not to value and covet it themselves Since that time they have maintained themselves constantly in the field, have organized a regular Government, have declared that slavery shall no more exist under their jurisdiction, and, single handed, have defied the power of Spain And ever since that time the singular spectacle has been displayed of all the civilized nations of the world standing aloof to witness the progress of this unequal contest and the unholy conduct of Spain animated by mutual fear of each other as less wise but not less sagacious mastiffs watch the carcass of the deer that the hound has run down

There is no doubt as to the character of the contest so far as Spain is concerned We were slow to believe it—but it can no longer be denied that it has meant from the first, extermination of all the elements not acknowledging even the justice as well as the power of the Spanish rule Spain furnishes us one of the best reasons that can be asked for the recognition of Cuban Independence For Spain is itself a revolution [illegible] substantial, and certainly less worthy than Cuba and yet it has been allowed to disgrace civilization in the brutality with which it has pursued all who have come under its ban No nationality has protected peaceful men from the fury of the mob that has been set over the Island In fact, even the arbitrary rule of the Spaniards has been disregarded [illegible] the new rule of savages who have controlled the course of events there Scarcely the form of drum-head court martial has been allowed in sending foreigners before they are dragged out and shot, and the instances are numerous where the butchery has been committed at sight, and the assassins still go at large Our Consuls are forced to fly for their lives the laws of nations are defied, and the laws of God are always outraged by the [illegible] savages who are too brutal to fight under even the bloody banner of Spain, and are forced to adopt the attractive appellation of "volunteers," under which to perform deeds fit for the highwayman

Maine is vitally interested in this subject She is interested naturally, as she is interested in every struggling people, and she is interested in the commerce which this war makes stagnant Our merchants are intimately connected with the Cuban people, their welfare is our advantage, their freedom from oppressive domination is our profit as well as our gratification We desire that our trade shall be restored with Cuba, and for that purpose this carnage and destruction must cease We desire to go there as formerly to renew our commercial relations and for that purpose our safety must be guaranteed

The time seems propitious for a demonstration such as that proposed Whatever may be the disposition of Congress and the administration, there can be no doubt where our sympathy should be Whatever motives may restrain the Government the people may well express their indignation at the horrible enormities of the Spanish rule and their admiration for the courage which [illegible] sustains the Cuban people under the hard rule which has so signally failed to crush them.— Why should not Maine, then, on the day set apart for that purpose, send up her voice to join the general expression of the country Why should not Bangor speak aloud for a cause which is just—for a people who will before long be of us as they are even now with us? The measure of our generosity may well and safely be accorded in [illegible] spoken demand for justice to Cuba

The passage of Mr Cullom's bill on Mormonism will prove a bombshell in the camp of the "Saints" and they begin to squirm already The Salt Lake News says of the passage of the bill by the House Many thought the House would never pass the bill in any form, and its clear invasion of the Constitution would kill it. We cannot say what the Senate will do with it, but this we can say if it passes and should receive the signature of the President and become a law it will not meet the wishes or answer the expectations of its authors Personally we care not what action be taken Persecution and proscription drove us from township to township, and so to this territory It has made us strong, thrifty and fearless The most valuable experience we possess to-day, we gained through persecution and we do not fear its effects If men wish to push Mormonism ahead, let them persecute pass Cullom's bill and if that fails, raise armies and attempt to fight, drive and exterminate and then watch the result"

Democracy is still living, in the Kilkenny sense The "young Democracy which it is" anti Tammany, held a caucus in Albany Thursday evening and resolved to call a general caucus of all the democratic members of the New York Legislature and to bind every man to vote for every bill agreed upon on pain of being branded as a traitor to his party Tweed's friends also met in his room and talked over matters Tweed said he would have a charter for New York ready next week that would be satisfactory to all "honest" men of all parties and would reduce taxation in New York hundreds of thousands of dollars per annum Tweed is a jokist.

In the trial of Prince Bonaparte Thursday witnesses were examined to prove the bad character of Noir and the good character of the accused, and his good conduct as an officer While one of the lawyers for the prosecution was conducting the cross examination of the witnesses, he used an expression offensive to the Prince, who violently interrupted the proceedings, and turning to the lawyer denounced him and his party Fouvielle, terribly excited, rose and called the Prince an assassin This caused great confusion among the spectators and Fouvielle was taken out by gens d'armes Flouquet then commenced the argument for the prosecution, He reviewed the lives of Noir Fouvielle and Prince Bonaparte dwelt upon the reputation of the Prince as a man of violence; asserted that he was known to have killed four men, and related how he left the military service without permission, in 1848, for which Louis Napoleon dismissed him from the army. At this point the Prince became greatly excited, and exclaimed that it was a plot to aggravate him. He was severely reprimanded for interrupting the counsel. At the conclusion of the argument M. Fouvielle was sentenced to ten days confinement for contempt of court.

An amusing episode found place in the National House of Representatives on Thursday Mr Hooper of Mass sent to the clerk's desk and had read, amidst the unrestrained laughter of the House an editorial from the Philadelphia Morning Post based upon a ludicrous blunder attributing to him the defence of polygamy made in the House on Tuesday by Mr Hooper the delegate from Utah The article says the fact of the speech having been written proved that Mr H's position was taken deliberately that the people, not only of Massachusetts but of the whole country, would be shocked at it that there must be cause for it somewhere, and asks "whether it were possible that one short visit to the harems of Salt Lake is all that is necessary to cause the leading men of the nation not only to approve polygamy but to turn their backs upon civilization and Christianity and embrace enthusiastically a damnable faith?— For the sake of the country's good name it was to be hoped that Samuel Hooper stood dumb [illegible] his iniquity and disgrace" Mr Hooper said that Mr [illegible] the editor of the paper, had apologized for the blunder and [illegible] all possible reparation

GENERAL HERSEY

The Oxford Democrat, while objecting to our nominating a candidate for Governor so long beforehand, bears testimony as follows

"The Bangor Whig nominates one of its own citizens, Gen Samuel F Hersey, as the Republican candidate for Governor What it says in his behalf is well said and true to our personal knowledge

[From the Somerset Reporter]

Last week we published an editorial article from the Bangor Whig which authoritatively announces that General Samuel F Hersey of Bangor will be presented by his friends to the next State Convention for the office of Governor The Bath Times seconds the nomination and the Rockland Free Press endorses it The Waterville Mail, the Piscataquis Observer and other papers speak favorably The Ellsworth American dissents on the ground that statesmen are made of different material than of men like General Hersey It would doubtless be much better for the nation if more of its statesmen were made of such material as Gen Hersey

Gen Hersey was one of the pioneers of the Republican party—placing himself with Ex-Governor A P Morrill in favor of the distinctive prohibitory legislation that first broke the front of the Democratic party in Maine He was among the first to organize the Republican party as the party of Freedom and has ever since been among the staunchest of the advocates of its great cardinal principles

Frequently in the Legislature, he has given his influence to shape the policy of the State particularly for its internal improvement and reformatory measures Professedly a temperance man his example has been consistent with his profession In his own business interests as well as in public affairs he has displayed a degree of wisdom and ability that best recommend him for the position named by his friends Perfectly conversant with the interests of the State, acquainted also very widely with business and other interests in other sections of our country he can bring to any position a [illegible] experience General Hersey has always been the warm friend of the State its schools, its material development and whatever can make Maine great

FORTY FIRST CONGRESS - SECOND SESSION

WASHINGTON, March 25

SENATE.

Mr Wilson introduced a bill to reduce the number of men and officers of the army and to fix their pay It reduces the army to twenty five thousand men and authorizes the President to discharge any officer applying for such discharge before September. By this bill the enlisted men now numbering about thirty two thousand, will be reduced to twenty five thousand by the first of September, which will reduce the expenses of the army several millions of dollars

Bills were reported for an increase of the subsidy of the San Francisco and China ocean mail service, with a provision that steamships on the line hereafter be built of iron and for the appointment of a Board of Examiners in the case of officers deeming themselves unjustly passed over by promotions under the act of July 27th, 1866

A joint resolution appropriating $10,000 for Capt C E Hall's Artic expedition, and authorizing the President to furnish a steamer for the voyage was referred to the Com on Foreign Affairs

HOUSE.

The House after some unimportant business went into Com of the Whole on the tariff bill.

Mr Allison of Iowa, continued his speech in favor of a general reduction of taxation. He gave notice of a motion to recommit the bill with instructions to report a reduction of 20 per cent., which he said could be done in two days without difficulty He claimed that the new classification of iron, though it reduced the duties on some classes, was on the whole an increase of duty The duty on Bessemer steel, of which rails are made is about equal to 100 per cent, and it was certainly a matter of great importance to cheapen railroad iron which would have the effect of diminishing the cost of transportation

Mr Kelley of Penn, then delivered a speech in favor of protection

Messrs Cleveland and Sargent followed Mr Kelley, after which the House adjourned, Mr Schenck giving notice that on Monday he would move to close the general debate on the bill

FROM WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, March 25

Senator Buckingham and Representative Starkweather, were before the House Committee on Appropriations to-day, arguing in favor of an appropriation for a navy yard at New London, and to show the eligibility of the site for the purpose of defence and protection to commerce.

In the executive session of the Senate this afternoon, Mr Sumner concluded his speech in opposition to the San Domingo, treaty and was followed by Mr. Morton who for several hours spoke in favor of the treaty yielding occasionally for questions

Mr Schurz will address the Senate on Monday in opposition to the treaty, although the indications are not now favorable

Several of the Senators said to-day that the prospects for ratification were improving, and delay will contribute that end.

Dr Don. Antonio Flores to-day presented his credentials to the President, as Minister resident of the Republic of Ecuador, and was received with the usual formalities Flores held the same mission ten years ago

Catharine Brown, a colored woman, to-day received $1,500 from the Washington, Alexandria and Georgetown Railroad Co for being ejected from their cars several years ago

MEETING OF THE BUSINESS MEN OF CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 25

At a meeting of the business men and bankers and brokers to-day, a memorial was adopted to Congress against the pending funding bill as tending to disturb the financial condition of the country and embarrass and injure moneyed transactions and cause a vast loss to all engaged in mercantile occupations and consequently be a great detriment to the country The memorial says—

We do not regard it as a question simply affecting the National banks, if it were, we should feel much less interest in it. We are of the opinion that no such change can take place without greatly diminishing the value of the bonds now held by the National banks and consequently greatly depreciating the value of all United States bonds The measure cannot be otherwise regarded than as an attempt by act in spirit at least unconstitutional to deprive arbitrarily one class of citizens of the rights of property which are held sacred in the hands of others, or as an attempt virtually to confiscate a large portion of the capital of the National banks The undersigned believe that the less legislation we have upon the subject at the present time, except perhaps such as may be necessary to remove all obstacles to free banking and place all banks and banking institutions upon a footing of equality, the better

They therefore pray that said provision may be stricken from said bill and no legislation take place that will in anywise tend to diminish the banking capital or impair confidence in the fair dealing and good faith of Congress in its legislation upon the subject of banking and currency They beg leave to add their conviction that the faith of the country in national banks and banking can not be maintained unless Congres acts upon the same principles in relation to them as are recognized in the States, in relation to such institutions, to wit that no legislation is to take place to unnecessarily interfere with or disturb the value of property created under the act incorporating them, so long as incorporators in good faith comply with the provisions and acts of incorporation They submit that the reservation of right at any time to amend, alter or repeal the act, was never intended to imply the right to destroy the value of the property of corporations or to legislate unjustly against it As a matter of necessity in time of war they cheerfully submitted to interruption of the banking system. So far as the circulation is concerned the present system has worked well and any change in it should be prospective and not interfere with vested rights or the rights of property and should under no circumstances be permitted to take place in a manner to create apprehension in commercial circles at a time when the whole business of the country is suffering and and such a large number of people are out of employment. They doubt whether any considerable number of capitalists can be induced to enter into the business of banking under provisions of the funding bill They fear that the legislation proposed would promote wide and general disaster

—The Gardiner Journal says the town of Etna is made up of about equal parts of pond bog, solid rock and loose rocks with a very little dirt to hold them together Mr Going Hathorn has a mill on the edge of the pond and has cut off all the timber within miles of it saving the dead and rocks in all their hid[illegible] lumber the most of which he will this summer make into lemon and orange boxes Isn't it a strange thing that the rocky hill sides of Etna should raise timber to box the golden fruit of Europe and Africa? These logs are peeled not sawed That is, the strips about an eighth of an inch thick are peeled off of the outside around the log till it is so small it cannot be further peeled Basswood logs are used the same way for picture-frame backs Mr Hathorn has about timber enough for another year, when he will abandon his mill—and then the land will again grow up to woods

A public meeting was held in Boston Thursday evening, for the purpose of discussing a resolution requesting the Common Council to expel two of its members alleged to be engaged in the liquor traffic in opposition to the laws of the Commonwealth. Hon. P Emery Aldrich presided and considerable enthusiasm was manifested. The matter was finally postponed to procure further testimony It is awakening a good deal of interest.

—Quite a large force of workmen is employed in the reconstruction of Strickland's block damaged by the late fire We are informed that it will be raised one story higher than formerly and covered with a French roof

—The Bangor Literary Association lately organized is progressing finely The meetings are held in College Hall but the society is not connected with the College, being open to all The discussions are very able and full of interest and instruction At the meeting last evening, the question appointed for discussion was whether success in life depends most [illegible] natural ability

On the 10th of August 1862 I found a young soldier who gave me his name as Elisha Bisbee of the 10th Maine regiment on the Cedar Mountain battle field (Culpepper County Va) wounded through the leg just [illegible] The leg was broken and he had been on the field ever since the day before I made him as comfortable as I could not having the means to carry him to our hospital, as he would have to be moved carefully and on a litter or ambulance, neither of which I could command, though I requested some of the ambulance drivers to remove him as soon as practicable, and do not doubt but that he was very soon carried back to our hospitals or removed by the Federals under the flag of truce that day, but do not know which side took care of him Let me know if you can if he ever reached home

It is known that it is a part of the religious creed of the Chinese that their ashes must rest in their native soil, and every Chinaman who emigrates receives this stipulation from the company which sends him out. It is carried out with great fidelity Now a bill has been introduced in the California Legislature, and will probably pass, prohibiting the exhumation and transportation of dead bodies The bill makes no distinction, but is unquestionably aimed at the Chinese, and would affect no other class seriously This is very potty legislation to be sure But it touches the Chinaman in a tender spot, and until he becomes a convert to Christianity he will never consent that his bones shall rest anywhere but in China. The result will be if the bill becomes a law, that the Chinese will avoid California and seek other States where there are no such illiberal restrictions.

Canadians are rejoicing in the belief that through the efforts of Canada to export American silver, and the efforts of the States to import it, what has so long been called the silver nuisance will soon disappear

SOLDIERS OF 1861.

$100 Bounty.

The Supreme Court of the United States has just decided that those Soldiers who enlisted under the first call of the President prior to July 22d 1861, and who were honorably discharged upon a Surgeon's certificate of disability, are entitled to a bounty of $100

This bounty has heretofore been refused to Soldiers who served less than two years unless discharged on account of wounds Under this decision it will be paid to those discharged by reason of disease

We are authorized to procure this bounty, and will collect it for those entitled, promptly, and at the lowest rates

Applications will be sent by mail upon request to those who cannot call at our office Those for whom we have not previously done business will please forward their discharges to us, and we will send the necessary papers by return mail.

near the village of North Waterford, Oxford County This land is covered with thrifty sapling Pine timber, standing near Crooked river, which runs through the tract Logs put into Crooked river can be run to Saccarappa, or by hauling four to five miles they can be put into the Saco. There is a good mill privilege, with a single saw mill on the tract, distance to the canal at Harrison ten miles, to the railroad at South Paris twelve miles. The land is valuable for settling purposes after being cleared of timber the whole capital stock being represented by 827 shares. The property of the company consists of a Steam Saw Mill, capable of manufacturing five million feet of long lumber, with a proportionate amount of clapboards, shingles and laths About fifteen acres land in the city of Lewiston, well located for building purposes, and thirty thousand acres of timber land, well located on the Androscoggin river and its branches, from which but a small quantity of the timber has been cut.

Also 435 Shares of Stock in the Lewiston Steam Mill Company,

PLAYING KITTEN.

Have you seen a kitten play with a ball?
She clutches it tight in her sharp little claws,
Tosses it up, and then lets it fall,
Rolls it away and after a pause,
Brings it again to her side, with a spring
Bounds far from it with motion active,
Yet ne er for an instant, loses the thing —
Oh a kitten playing is very attractive

Just so a maiden plays with my heart,
A moment she holds it meshed in her smiles
Then seems to forget me and turns apart
And when I am almost freed from her wiles
Calls me back with a glance so sweet
That only her in the world I see
And again lie captive before her feet
Though I know she is playing kitten with me

CHAP VII

"An' you aint heerd on't? Why it's in everybody's mouth an' I s'posed you bein' so intimate with the family would 'a' been the fust one to know about it "

'I haven't seen one of the family for more than a week," and Mabel's voice was low and husky, while her fingers trembled nervously as she tried to thrust her needle through the strip of cambric that she held in her hand

'That so?"

The words were spoken in the most natural tone imaginable, but Mrs Parkman's sharp grey eyes were riveted upon Mabel's colorless face, with a malicious twinkle that boded mischief

'They ve acted funny about it anyhow, she went on relentlessly, apparently unheeding her companion's evident unwillingness to discuss the subject,

'Never sayin' a word tu nobody about it, but it leaked out through Joan Peabody You see they wanted her tu go ter the house, an do some dressmakin, an' she was cunnin enough tu say somethin' about it s bein a weddin dress, (she allers takes that way with unmarried folks, and she picks up an awful sight o news o) an the girl, that Melissa Smith that tuk poor Phrony Hines' place there, she up an told the hull story of how Margaret an that young Scotchman was a'goin' tu be married a week from next Tuesday, an the dress was for a travellin suit, for they're a goin right off just as soon as ever the knot's tied "

Mabel smiled faintly

They wont have any wedding, I presume?

No, only a few of the neighbors in, just fur witnesses, I s'pose "

Mr Morton will be very lonely without them' remarked Mabel trying to speak indifferently, for it seemed to her that this prying woman's eyes were looking down into the very depths of her aching heart

Oh, they say it s one of his own plans, so he can't find much fault if he is lonesome, sneered the other 'The talk is that Miss Seymore left her property tu Morton, with the understandin' that when he died it sh'd be divided betwixt the two young folks So for the sake o' keepin' it whole, the old man made them promise to have each other when they warn't nothin' but children, an' now he s set out that they ve got tu keep the promise'"

'That story has a lie on the face of it, exclaimed Mabel, so suddenly that the astonished gossip fairly started to her feet, in amazement,

'This will of which you speak was not in existence as long ago as when Margaret and her cousin were children, for I heard Mr Grant her lawyer say that he drew it up for her only a few weeks before she died So let the story of the betrothal be true or not, the object assigned is simply impossible "

Mrs Parkman was fairly cornered, but she chose to put a good face upon the matter, and laughing, a short hard laugh, that grated horribly upon poor Mabel s quivering nerves she said coolly

'What a master hand you are for seein' right through things Mark might take you into company with him, for I'll bet you'd make the smartest lawyer of the two But I dont know nothin' o' the truth o the story myself I only tell it as I heerd it but I guess there aint no doubt about the marriage itself, anyhow "

'I presume not," and Mabel bent her pale face lower over her sewing while her visitor remarked in what she evidently meant for a sympathizing tone but which was instead a tantalizing one

Ain't you well, tu day? Why, you was as red a pinny when I come in, an now a sheet aint whiter'n yer face is lips an' all "

Mabel colored painfully Would this horrible woman ever go away, and leave her to collect her thoughts, that she might reason calmly upon this scarcely yet credited story Her brain swarmed with a host of distracting thoughts Had she been deceiving herself with the belief that the love which she could not but acknowledge to her own heart was returned with equal fervor? And it was only by a painful effort at calmness that she forced herself to laugh away the idea of any indisposition or her part, and listen with outward composure as her tormentor returned to her original subject

They're a mighty cool pair o lovers if they are lovers, for there's many a married couple that never was that But it's my opinion an' I aint alone in it neither that it aint so much their doins as tis the old man s If Miss Seymore's will didn't have nothin' tu do with it, I s'pose Mr Morton wouldn't feel very bad tu see his daughter Lady Mc Donald So there s reason enough for his meddlin '

"Mrs Parkman," and Mabel spoke with a simple dignity that fairly overawed her gossiping visitor

This marriage is no affair of yours nor mine, and if there is anything that the parties themselves wish to keep concealed in regard to it, it is a mean and dishonest act to endeavor to drag it to light "

Mrs. Parkman was not slow to take the hint, and when she took her leave as she soon did there was a flush of angry shame upon her brow, which proved that the shaft had struck home

"And now," thought Mabel, as her neighbor's sunbonnet disappeared, at last, beyond the cedar hedge that separated the two domains "I will know the truth or falsehood of this report, for it is to me, a matter of too much importance to be settled by the tongues of village gossips If I have given my love undesired the secret is my own, for I know that I may rely upon my womanly pride to sustain me, and blind the eyes of the world."

There was no thought of postponement no hesitating, and above all no questioning of uninterested parties No, Mabel Hamilton was too energetic and straightforward to be satisfied with aught but certainty, and as she adjusted with unusual care the pretty new bonnet, and folded her light mantle carefully around her, no one would have dreamed of the wild commotion going on beneath that calm and quiet exterior

"Welcome, Miss Mabel!"

It was Mr. Morton who spoke, and his looks even more than his words proved the sincerity of his greeting as, bowing politely he escorted her, somewhat to her surprise to Margaret's room, where, wrapped in a loose dressingown the young girl reclined upon a low couch near the fire, that had been kindled for her special benefit, her face pale and listless while the dark rings about her eyes, told of intense mental or physical suffering.

The wan face lighted up with a smile of welcome as Mabel entered, and she exclaimed, joyfully:

"Oh, Mabel, I am so glad to see you! I have been expecting you every day since I have been [illegible] Why didn't you come before?"

"[illegible] that you were ill," replied Mabel, surprised and pained at this unexpected state of things. I have had more than usual to occupy my time for the last two weeks, and I have felt almost vexed with you for being so unneighborly "

Margaret smiled faintly and her friend was shocked to observe the weary listless look that settled down upon her features, so unlike the quiet cheerfulness habitual to her

'I made a visit to our mutual friend old Debby some ten days ago, she said with an effort, as if the words pained her " and took a severe cold that brought on inflammation of the lungs, but I am much better now

"Do you cough much?" asked Mabel quickly, startled as a New Englander always is at a hint of lung disease

"Very little now but I am very weak I should not have supposed that a few days suffering could have so reduced me

"You must be very, very careful " and Mabel spoke with grave solicitude for this temporary inflammation of the lungs may end in something more serious

Margaret smiled her thanks for the friendly caution, but Mr Morton said with some anxiety in his tone

"Your climate is bad for weak lungs and it is well for Margaret that she is so soon to leave it The pure, bracing Scottish air will soon restore the roses to her cheeks and bending down he kissed tenderly the white face that rested upon the crimson cushions of the couch like a lily leaf astray in a bed of poppies

Mabel was surprised at this unusual exhibition of tenderness, from one usually so grave and undemonstrative, but as she caught a glimpse of Margaret s embarrassed face the full meaning of his words came home to her heart with a terrible significance and yet her brow was smooth and her voice untroubled as she said, gently

"We shall miss you very much [illegible] what I have heard in regard to your approaching marriage, for I suppose [illegible] our parting will be a final one

Margaret made no answer Her eyes were closed, but they could not hide the tears that trembled beneath the white lids and stole softly down her cheek

Mr Morton again interposed

"We owe yourself and brother many thanks Miss Mabel, for your kindness to us in our exile, for so I cannot but consider my forced residence here, although my cousin probably took a different view of it judging by that clause in her will wherein my right to the property was forfeited if I refused to occupy the mansion in which she died So you see I must remain a fixture here for life constantly requiring a continuance of your neighborly kindnesses

Mabel tried to frame a suitable reply to this remarkable confidence on the part of her host but her tongue seemed paralyzed and she could only murmur a few [illegible] almost unintelligible words Mr Morton took no heed apparently of her embarrassment but chatted away in the most confidential manner imaginable actually unbending so far as to compliment his visitor upon the beauty and delicacy of her ungloved hand that rested upon Margaret's couch

"You have a real lady s hand Miss Mabel he said gallantly, Show me your hand and I will tell you at a glance if a noble s or a churl s blood runs in his veins I always had a prejudice in favor of a handsome hand and I know that if I had lived in the days of Queen Bess, I could have devoted my life to her soul and body, for the privilege of kissing her fair hand There was a hand that while it wielded the scepter right royally noted for its delicate beauty

'I have no ambition for making my hand proof of noble birth returned Mabel glad of the introduction of a subject upon which she could force herself to talk What Nature may have done for it is no concern of mine, my aim is to make it as useful as possible in promoting the comfort and happiness of those I love

With a sudden movement, Margaret drew the hand that rested beside her pillow to her lips, and kissed it, passionately

"Dear, dear Mabel!" she whispered tenderly, It would be beautiful to me if it were as hard and brown as that of a [illegible] for it is the hand of my best friend

Here, Mr Morton, pleading an engagement retired from the room leaving the two girls alone

For a moment there was an embarrassed silence, and then lifting her head from its pillow, and resolutely wiping away the tears that still bedewed her cheek, Margaret said modestly, but with nothing of the girlish trepidation that would naturally accompany such a confession in a loved and loving maiden

'Yes, Mabel, I am to be married the twentieth of this month I do not [illegible] it is by my own choice that I marry [illegible] to me a dear brother, and nothing more yet I shall make no false or impossible promises, for I already love and honor him and to obey will be no hard duty "

'But Donald,—will he feel satisfied with this calm, sisterly affection so different from the devoted love that a husband s heart claims as its right?

Margaret sighed wearily

'He will not mind it,' she said bitterly "It is but the fulfillment of a Scripture prophecy, with whatsoever measure ye mete it shall be measured unto you again I shall give only that which I receive

Confused and uncertain, Mabel tried to collect her thoughts to answer this strange assertion, but Margaret went on in the same cold, unnatural tone

'You will be my bridesmaid, will you not and he added imploringly as Mabel shook her head, "you won't refuse me I know it is the last act of friendship that I shall ever require from you '

"I cannot Oh, Margaret anything but that!" and bowing her head upon the pillow of the couch, Mabel forgot all of pride, of concealment, of womanly art and sobbed like a grieved and suffering child

The sight of her friend s distress seemed to recall Margaret to herself and tenderly folding her arms about her she whispered softly

"Forgive me dear I did not mean to startle or annoy you but I am ill and nervous and this marriage is almost as [illegible] to me as you Donald is obliged to go back sooner than he had intended and that is the reason of this unpleasant haste You won t need to trouble yourself to get up an elaborate dress for the occasion,' she added, fancying that the shortness of time for preparation might be her friend s principal objection to the arrangement "for we are to be married in a very quiet way, only a few of our friends invited. No stir no show about it at all so you won t refuse on that account?"

'Oh no not for that!" sobbed Mabel 'It is all so sudden and so—unwelcome " The word would come and she qualified it by adding with equal truth

"It is so hard to part with you when I was looking forward with so much pleasure to a long companionship between us But you must forgive my foolish hesitancy and I will do, or be, anything that you wish.'

Cheered by her friend's acquiescence Margaret soon regained her composure and with clasped hands they sat and talked together of the past with its joys and pleasures and of the future with its hopes, its doubts and fears, until the twilight shadows began to gather in the darkening room and the fire in the grate had burned itself down to a tiny bed of coals that looked out from amidst the blackened cinders like a score of fiery eyed sentinels, unsleeping and vigilant.

Then Mabel rose from her seat and replacing the mantle that had fallen from her shoulders, said tenderly as she pressed a parting kiss upon her friend's forehead

"Good night, Maggy; I must go now, for it is growing dark and you know what a [illegible] I am. Mark says that I am too well read in all these old ghostly legends to behave like a sensible woman in the dark "

"Wait a moment," urged Margaret, "Donald will be here soon He has been to town to-day and I heard the cars whistle some ten or fifteen minutes ago so he must be here very soon now and then he will walk home with you

Oh no Not for the world I was only jesting This Spring twilight is rather pleasant than otherwise and bidding her friend a hasty good night Mabel passed hurriedly out through the empty hall into the chill night air beyond

It was a dark cloudy evening and in spite of her assertions to the contrary Mabel's cowardly heart began to flutter ominously as she [illegible] the long avenue that led from the house [illegible] evergreens [illegible]
